Letters to the editor

Judith Hahn, Port St. Lucie

I'm afraid I must contest Shellie Kemp's opinion of a "helpful" Mayor JoAnn Faiella (Sept. 21 letter). My neighborhood has a safety issue that was fully documented and hand-delivered to her office July 2. After six weeks with no response, I called her office and left her a message to contact me.

As of this writing, she has still not responded.

Maybe if I had an organization she could cozy up to instead of just being Jane Citizen, it would make it worth her while to address our concerns.

After weeks of frustration, I emailed candidate Greg Oravec and explained the issues on our street. He responded within an hour, then came to our house and offered some suggestions he would have if he were mayor.

Quite frankly, I expected some generic response from him to my email; I did not expect that he would take off from his busy schedule to look at our problem.

This is the choice the citizens of Port St. Lucie have. Do you want a mayor who represents only special interests or a mayor who responds to every citizen's concerns.
